

INTRODUCTION TO HORSE PUZZLES

by Deb Bennett, Ph.D.

I confess it right here: I'm a crossword puzzle addict. Pretty grumpy is how I feel if my daily newspaper doesn't arrive, complete with a fresh 15 X 15 block every day. Sudoku has passed me by; the Word Search doesn't thrill me; the Brain Teaser is there too, but I ignore it. The crossword's the thing.

The crossword puzzle format is very flexible, allowing of considerable variation. One need only state the rules. I'm not a good enough crossword puzzlemaker to create the kind of puzzle you see in the daily paper -- these puzzles carry as one rule that the grid must be symmetrical. In other words, the black squares in the grid must be mirror images, left to right and top to bottom.

Much simpler to make are crosswords of irregular pattern. This is the type that I see in British newspapers, though there the grid is presented as just inter-crossing words, without the empty squares being black. With or without black squares, this kind of puzzle is a kind of hybrid between an Acrostic and a formal crossword.

The other thing about irregular crosswords is that they are much more amenable to being packed with "theme" words. Naturally, every puzzle presented here has some kind of "horsey" theme, and there are not less than a dozen "theme" answers in each puzzle. And I've pulled no punches as to difficulty: to solve these puzzles, you really will need to know something about horses. At the same time, however, I follow New York Times Puzzlemaster Will Short's preferences for clues: they are perfectly straightforward -- no intentionally tricky stuff, no excessive obscurity. I give you the "freebie" when, as occasionally happens, a string of letters comes out to make no sense at all.

My intention is to revise this document periodically in order to increase the number of puzzles included. Initially there are four: Bare Bones, Flex Your Muscles, A Breed Apart, and Show Your Colors.

Anyone who wishes is welcome to make use of these puzzles as learning aids in an equine education program. The puzzles are copyright to me, but I hereby explicitly give permission for them to be used for any classroom or educational purpose, including Pony Club, Old Persons Riding Club, 4H, FFA, agricultural college, or riding club. It is explicitly forbidden to publish these puzzles, to make electronic copies, or to make more than 50 copies on paper at one time.

Puzzles are presented first, with the filled-in answers in the same order at the back of the document.

I hope you enjoy playing with these. --
